rectly benefited could have assumed the expense. The time may come when all county roads can be plowed out during the winter seasons; that would be fine, but the cost would be very heavy for the taxpayers to assume under the present small valuation. The plowing out of any of the county roads here has never been done, but no doubt another year provisions will be made for keeping open at least those that are needed most during the winter months.

There are very few game in which the referee doesn't make some mistake, but when it comes to charging him with crookedness, which the Roscommon article infers, then it is a different matter. —Fortunate Coach Cushman of the Gray was in attendance at the game and he tells us that the refereeing was all right and that Roscommon has no just reason for complaint.

A STUDY OF LINDBERGH

On the occasion of Lindbergh's recent flight from Cartagena to Bogota, Colombia, the three hours immediately preceding his landing passed without news of him. Much apprehension was felt, as it was known that the intrepid flyer had to pass over a mountainous country often covered with a pall of fog. His countless admirers were greatly relieved when it became known that he had landed safely and that the delay in transmission of news had been due to broken wires.

This Lindbergh chap is a very extraordinary person. His superb feat in flying alone and unaided to Paris stands out as the incomparable achievement of the age. Winging his way through sleet and fog over a trackless waste of water, when a moment's inattention meant destruction, he came through his terrifying and unprecedented adventure with superb success. His final landing on Le Bourget field was amid such a scene of enthusiastic acclaim as had never before been witnessed.

Then came his perilous trip to Mexico.

ico, in the course of which he was "lost" for a time. But with his capacity for intelligent perseverance he overcame all difficulties and landed in Mexico City, where he was given another tremendous ovation. Since then he has flown to many of our sister republics in Latin America, and in all those countries has been received with tremendous demonstrations of admiration and affection. With all the adulation that has been heaped upon him, he maintains that invariably modest and unassuming demeanor that has so endeared him to the world.

Lindbergh displays qualities that are unique in these dollar-chasing days. He seems to be absolutely indifferent to financial gain, having rejected offers that would have made him many times a millionaire in order to devote his energies to the advancement of aviation. "He is a natural-born diplomat and seems to have an instinctive knowledge of the right thing to do or say at the right moment. He has the faculty of getting things done—of doing the thing he sets out to do. Altogether an unusual person, this Lindbergh—a character we are not likely soon to see duplicated."

What a wonderful place this old world would be if the Lindbergh spirit imbued humanity at large! Greed, selfishness and conceit would disappear, and generosity, courtesy and modesty would take their place. Lindy, by his conduct throughout his marvelous adventures, has set an inspiring example for the youth of the world.

General Sandino's fate seems to be in doubt, but there is no doubt in the mind of the average Nicaraguan about the ability of the U. S. marines to take the sand out of Sandino.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET FEB. 16

DADS INVITED TO BRING THEIR SONS

A big night is in store for the fathers and sons here next Thursday night, Feb. 16th, when the Ladies Aid Society of the Michelson Memorial church will give a Father and Son Banquet. Every dad who can possibly get there is invited to attend and bring his son. And those men who have no son to bring are urged to adopt one for the occasion.

This night is set aside for the fathers and the boys and everything possible is going to be done to make it a happy occasion. There will be a fine banquet served by the ladies of the church followed by a program of talks and entertainment. Some of the young lads are going to take part in the program too and every young boy who has a dad will want to be there.

Rev. Greenwood will be the toastmaster and that means that there is going to be a lot of fun spilled so be prepared to laugh. Dr. Julian West of Gaylord will be the principal speaker and those who have heard him know that he will give them a good talk. Dr. West is blind but is in spite of that handicapped—he is a very brilliant speaker. His subject will be "Tracker and Trackmakers".

Every father here should be proud to take his son to this banquet, and every son should be proud to be the guest of his father. The price of the banquet is only 50 cents a plate. It will be worth a dollar! But the Ladies Aid wants you to come and assure you of a glad welcome.

BIG CROWD ENJOYS WINTER SPORTS

The double toboggan slide at Lake Margrethe last Sunday speeded up the riding and a larger crowd was able to get their turns to go down the icy incline. During the afternoon the slide wasn't quite as fast as usual due to the warm weather, but neither the less it was fast enough for all but the daredevils who eat them alive. The coating was excellent and fully 500 persons were on the hill that afternoon.

When evening came and with it colder atmosphere, the slides were wonderful and fast enough for the wildest enthusiasts. The speed of some of the toboggans was well over the rate of 100 miles an hour. It was terrific and just the way most of the youngsters liked it. And one great satisfaction is that it is proving safe and sane as well as thrilling.

Slide Still in Fine Shape
In spite of the rainy weather of the first of the week, the slide is still in fine shape. In fact Herb Gothro, who is the chairman of the finance committee and who has probably done more than anyone else without pay in making the project a success, says the slide is now in the best shape it ever was in. The bed is solid ice and smooth as glass from the start to the finish. Frank Serven, who is in charge of the construction work and his crew are busy patching up the sides of the tandem slides wherever it is needed and it looks as though there was still a lot of sport ahead for the people.

Fixing Ice Rink
The heavy snows of late put a damper on the ice skating, but the committee has been busy clearing the ice and it is again ready for this fine sport. Get your skates and come out at any time now and have a fine time. Bring your hockey sticks and get into that game too.

No Worry for Animals
As far as we are aware, animals have no notion of time in the sense we have. The future means nothing to them, and for this they are much happier than we are. They live for the present moment only. They have no fears of what may happen to them in days to come—no fear, then, of death and no yearning after immortality. Neither do we suppose that they have any clear conception of the past, although undoubtedly they have unconscious memory. The formation of habits depends on this. But they don't consciously think over the happy days of youth gone by, nor brood over the sorrows of old age.—St. Louis Fox in the Forum.

Military Watches
In early Hebrew history, about 8,000 years ago, it was the custom of the tribes, which then lived in camps, which they moved from place to place, to set a watch against surprise attacks by roving bands of robbers from the north. They divided their nights into convenient watches of about four hours each. It appears that they adopted the custom from military practice.—The Arrivals.

Last Friday we ciphered down Leland Charron put down all in the sixth and all but Harry O'Dell in the fifth grades.

The pupils of the Primary room enjoy coming in to visit us mornings, noons, and recess periods. They became accustomed to this habit during their three-weeks stay with us. We miss their bright smiles and cute sayings, especially the Primer Class.

The pupils are using their Arithmetic Work-Books and are keeping a score of their work each day.

The 6th Grade have finished learning "The Village Blacksmith" by Longfellow. They will write it from memory for English Tuesday. All mistakes in spelling and punctuation will count points off.

We lost one of our brightest pupils when Ferris Parsons left us last Wednesday. He visited us Friday and took active part in our contest. He promised to write to us when he got settled in his school work at Rogers City.

Francis Hunter visited us Tuesday morning.

Primary Room
Billie and Erebora Richards are with us again after being absent all week having been sick.

Elsie Weaver is in school again being absent the latter part of the week.

Carl Barber and Lloyd Welch were visitors in the Primary Room Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Arnold was a visitor last Friday afternoon.

Francis Hunter was a visitor in our room Tuesday forenoon.

Catherine Emsen added another plant to those that were not frozen before Christmas.

Come and see us, one and all.

also filled with other technical and general information pertaining to oil possibilities in the Lower Peninsula. Only a very small section of the Upper Peninsula has any possibilities for oil, the state geologist says, explaining why that is true.

PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARIES

Washington, D. C.—Once again for the purpose of providing a record which can be tucked into the sweatband of the hat, or the inner fold of the pocketbook, we are printing a list of the Presidential primary dates in the 17 states that have them.

The first will be held in New Hampshire Tuesday, March 6. It is already generally understood that in this state an "unpledged" delegation favorable to Mr. Hoover will be elected. North Dakota is second. It will hold its primary March 20. Michigan starts off the April primaries with its balloting on the 2nd. Wisconsin voters will express their preference, the 3rd; Illinois the 10th and Nebraska also on the 10th. Pennsylvania votes April 22-23. Massachusetts and Ohio also on that day.

On the first day of May, California voters will express their preference. Maryland will vote on the 7th, and Indiana on the 8th. New Jersey votes May 15, and Oregon May 18. South Dakota will go to the preferential polls on the 23rd and West Virginia on the 28th. Florida will close the presidential primary season by voting June 5.

Bark Vital Part of Tree

The stem of a tree, also called trunk and bole, is the main axis extending from the roots to the crown, or to the tip in case of an unbranched stem. Tree stems range from long to short, straight to crooked and from erect to prostrate. An examination of a cross-section of a stem will show bark, wood and pith, says the American Tree Association. In the central part of the stem is the pith. About it is the wood, which in many trees can be divided into the darker heartwood and the lighter sapwood. Between the wood and the bark is a thin layer known as the cambium. This is the most vital part of a tree, for it is here that all new wood and bark are made up.

British Coal Abundant

For her size, Great Britain has more and better coal than any other country in the world. The coal seams, lying one below another to an unknown depth, not infrequently cropping out at the surface, are proof that tropical conditions once prevailed in the latitude of these islands. The district which is now Great Britain was connected in prehistoric times with the continent, and the coal of England doubtless runs under the channel and the southern part of the North sea continuing in the coal fields of north France, Belgium and Flanders.

MICHIGAN HAS OIL POSSIBILITIES

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 2.—The entire Lower Peninsula of Michigan has oil possibilities, according to State Geologist R. A. Smith, writing in the February number of The Michigan Property Owner, which will be off the press early next week. Mr. Smith states that "scientific drilling will undoubtedly bring out a number of oil fields of commercial value, and that a few of them at least will probably be large ones. The article goes into details regarding the oil geology of Michigan, pointing out particularly that oil is found only in folds or anticlines in the state's geologic strata and explaining how these anticlines, which become the oil fields, can be found. The article is

A LITTLE TALK ON THRIFT

(By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.)

It is somewhat unfortunate that in much of the current discussions of thrift undue emphasis is placed on the function of penny-saving.

Certainly no criticism can be leveled at the doctrine of economy in little things. Most business failures as well as those which come to individuals are the results of small items of waste. However, true thrift only begins with small savings. If this were not true, one would be forced to commend the practices of the miser.

As the result of constant exhortations to save pennies, save nickels and save dimes many persons receive such an erroneous impression of thrift, that they decide to have none of it.

Thrift should be emphasized as a practice which means real progress and right living. Of course, this includes saving little things. It is thrifty to save the pennies. It is just as thrifty to save the moments; to be careful of one's health; to store the mind with useful knowledge; to keep one's self sound mentally and physically as well as financially.

It is for this reason that in schools where saving banks are in operation there should also be instruction given to the young on the true purposes and objectives of thrift. Continually harping upon the point of saving pennies is quite apt to have one of two major reactions: (1) There is danger that the student will develop a narrow, tight-fisted, mercenary, avaricious attitude. (2) There is danger that the whole subject of thrift will seem so trite and colorless that he will pay no attention to it.

Thrift does mean penny-saving but only as part of the greater plan of eliminating all waste in order to promote the highest possible degree of personal efficiency and usefulness.

Interesting Events In Grayling 23 Years Ago

INTERESTING ITEMS OF NEWS GATHERED FROM THE FILES OF THE AVALANCHE OF 23 YEARS AGO.

Thursday, Feb. 2, 1905
Joe Kraus returned from Bay City Monday.

O. S. Hawes of Detroit is in town on business this week.

The mercury registered at 15 degrees below zero Monday morning.

Miss Ella Guild of Deward was the guest of Miss Doland during the Inspirational Institute.

Joseph Cauchon of Lewiston was here on a business trip last Friday, and went to Bay City Saturday morning.

J. J. Niederer has his ice harvest nearly finished and the crop was never excelled in quality. It is clear as crystal.

Salling, Hanson & Co. are treating their salesrooms to steel ceilings. A fine improvement. Hugh Oaks is doing the artist work.

Five Indians have died of small pox at Saginaw, and there is much fear that the epidemic will be widespread among the noble red men there.

J. W. Sorenson started west yesterday for a two months' vacation. He has been tied up closely with business and will take a rest in travel and sightseeing.

With the exception of four or five days, January has been an ideal winter month in this locality, while north end south of us have been disastrous storms.

Misses Guild and Clark came down from their school at Deward last Friday to hear Prof. Ferris and have a few pleasant hours with former associates here.

Sheriff Stillwell took John McNeer, an incorrigible drunk and disorderly to the Detroit House of Correction on Tuesday for ninety days' bond. He will have time to get sober.

The C. E. meeting at the Presbyterian church last Sunday evening was one of unusual interest. A service of song and Scripture verses was followed by a talk on Hawaii by Miss Alexander, which was intensely interesting, and the large number of people who were there wished that it might have lasted another hour, so interested were they.

Died—At Manistique, Mich., January 24, Hans Michaelson, aged 42 years. Burial was the duty of Mr. and Mrs. Jens Michaelson of this village and was a resident here until 1898, when he moved with his wife to Manistique. The body was brought here for burial. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon from the Danish Lutheran church. Rev. A. P. W. Becker, assisted by Rev. H. A. Sheldon, officiating.

Walmer Jorgenson has been having a severe struggle with typhoid fever for his life, but is now happily convalescent. He had been feeling ill for several days before our fire and that night exposed himself and worked like a hero, staying with us until the last load of salvage was secured. He has our fullest sympathy for his suffering and we realize it was largely caused by his sympathy for our loss.

Died—At her home in South Branch, January 27, Mrs. Payette P. Dickinson, aged 74 years.

William G. Woodfield has severed his connection with the M. C. R. R. and bought a half interest in the Hamilton Coal Co., at West Branch, to which he will give personal attention. He has been a resident of our village for over twenty years and in railroad employ for ten years. He will not move his family until spring. His many friends will regret his going and wish him success.

Mrs. Clarissa Taylor, who has held the office of finance keeper in the W. R. C. for the past seven years, was presented with a handsome chair last Friday evening by the club members.

A subscriber who pays for his paper in advance hands us the following, which contains more truth than poetry: "There is probably no place on earth better than a country newspaper office to learn how many kinds of people there are. Some get huffy at a statement and others will not pay until they receive a statement. Some will pay without a statement, and others will not pay whether a statement is sent or not. Some thought they owed more and some thought they didn't owe so much. Some say they couldn't get along without the paper, and others say it don't amount to much. But the meanest, scrubbiest in the list is the man who takes it until he is shut off for non-payment and then spends half his time explaining how he used to take the thing, but stopped it because it was of no account."

Thursday, Feb. 9, 1905
Dr. S. N. Insley made a business trip to Detroit last week.

Dr. Woodworth went to Gaylord yesterday on professional business.

Miss Katie Bates had a pleasant surprise party one morning last week, from her parents, on the sixteenth anniversary of her birth. An elegant watch and guard.

Fifteen little lassies gathered in a pleasant party last Saturday with Miss Marie Foreman and had a happy time with games and play. Light refreshments were served.

S. A. Robinson was down from the mill Monday and says everything is running like grease in the mill and woods. We are all glad to hear such stories of prosperity.

Mrs. A. L. Trumley came up from their Bay City home to care for her sister, Miss Flora Marvin, who was quite indisposed for a time. As the sister grew better Mrs. Trumley took time to visit old friends.

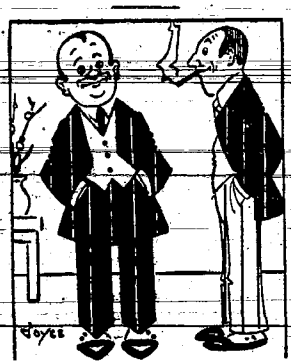

The Citizen's band are preparing to give another of their popular band concerts February 25. They claim this concert will surpass all of the others as the program will be mixed with vaudeville work and the leading number will be the classical selection, "William Tell."

C. F. Kelley was down from Proctor Monday, claiming good business in their town, and growth, especially in the school, in which he has always taken a lively interest. While he is shivering with the cold his family are enjoying fruit and flowers in Southern California.

The following students earned 100 in plane geometry last week: Frank Trombley, Edith Chamberlain, Arthur Fournier, Claire Redhead, Gottie Kraus, Willard Hammond and Helen Johnson. The test was on work done in January.

Friday evening was enjoyably spent by the thirty of our young people at the party given in the home of Miss Mabel Drummond in the home of Miss Katie Bates. Progressive March was the game of the evening. Twelve

PULLETS START LAYING EARLIER

Produce More Eggs Than Hens in Months When Prices Are Higher.

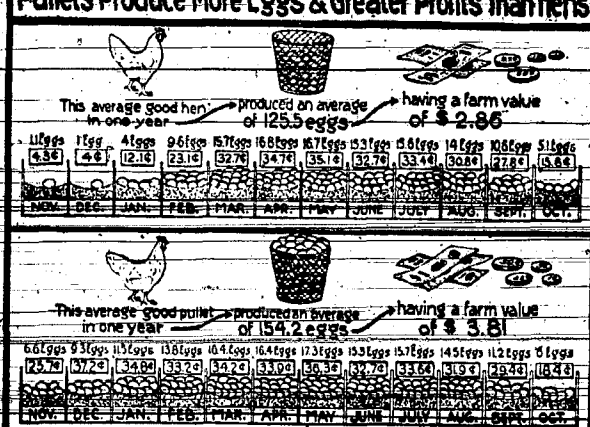

Pullets are bigger and more profitable layers than hens, declares the Blue Valley Creamery Institute, in its suggestions for a good poultry flock. The principal reason for the superiority of young birds is in that they start laying early and produce a larger number of eggs than old hens do during the months of November, December, January and February, when egg prices are higher.

A good example of the greater profitability of pullets, over hens is furnished by the records of a New Jersey poultry man on his flock of good layers. He found that in November his pullets laid an average of 6.5 eggs per bird as compared to an average of only 4.1 eggs for each of his hens. In December, the pullets increased their production to an average of 6.3 eggs and the hens each presented him with an average of only one egg in return for one month's feed and care. The total number of eggs laid by the pullets in this flock during the four months starting with November averaged 41.2 and by the hens in the same period, 15.7. During the summer the production of the young and old birds was about the same, as shown in the illustration above. At the end of the year, however, the pullets had a record of an average of 154.2 eggs per bird and the hens, 125.5 eggs.

The superiority of pullets over hens in this flock is still greater when the total value of all the eggs laid during the year is considered. Because the pullets laid more eggs in winter than the hens, the value of all the eggs they laid during the year was $3.81, based on average prices received by farmers in the United States for eggs during the year ending October 15, 1929. The total value of the eggs laid by the hens during the same year was $2.80 - nearly a dollar less per bird or around 35% less per 100 birds.

Farm Bureau Notes

R. D. Bailey, Co. Agricultural Agent

"With ordinary talent and extraordinary determination all things are possible."—Theodore Roosevelt.

Even Though Storms Do Blow
Some who are inclined to be critical may ask why we often print, in our winter notes, suggestions that cannot be used before spring and summer weather.

We know that some have already guessed the answer, which is, of course, "So that all may make plans now, in winter, to do some of these good things in summer, and to include them now with the improvements the progressive farmers mean to make in next year's practice over past year's mistakes."

What Do You Think?
What do you think of that idea, anyhow—a little improvement each year, instead of blindly stumbling along in a rut, just the same each year, and possibly not getting anywhere worth while?

Is There or Is There Not?
Is there any place in your farm management that could be and should be improved?—Or, did you years ago, strike just the right methods, so good, so correct, so leading to prosperity that they do not need to be changed?

If so, you are quite an unusual and lucky man! Most of us are not built that way. We are not so lucky. We have to keep changing, improving—a little here, a little there.

Why Not?
Yes, why not? Why not change a little here, improve a little there every year? It's nothing to be ashamed of to let go one farm practice and to put a better one in its place. It's done on all sides. Everybody's doing it now. Railroads are adopting improvements all the time. Autos are being improved all the time. The auto you buy now does not look much like the noisy, awkward, chug-wagons that you first saw, do they?

Most of us have improved our farm houses and barns, and farm tools.

But, when it comes to the way we do things on the farm, the methods of farm management that we first blundered into, and along with, too often, when a change or an improvement is suggested by a newspaper article, by a county agent, by a bulletin, by a neighbor, too often we stiffen up with pride and reply: "Not by a damned sight. I'd starve! I'd die before I would give up or change one of my pet ways. Why, man, that's MY way, it's almost sacred. Change is not to be thought of. The other fellow may need to change; but me, no sir!"

Some Are
Not everybody, however, is quite so stiff-necked. We could here write the names of quite a nice list of our farmers who have changed a little, and the change is making them money.

We have in mind several who have by purchase, by breeding, by growing calves, practically re-made their dairy herds, until now the herd is worth while, is a source of quite a satisfactory income.

To the rebuilding of the herd they have added better feeding. This includes a better class of hay, and more baged feed, and the returns from the cows warrant the better feeding.

We would like to see this carried a little further, and preparations made next summer to feed silage or to grow roots to feed, if the farmer prefers them to ensilage.

We have farmers who buy 5 or 6 bags of milk maker of the co-operative association every week.

An abundance of roots, certainly ought to be raised on every farm where milk cows are kept, unless there is a silo. Of these roots, carrots, mangels and rutabagas are the right ones. If I had to raise only two, it would be carrots and mangels. Carrots give such a pleasing color to winter cream and butter, as well as having high feed value. Mangels give large tonnage per acre of very nourishing, juicy feed.

Large Enough and Good Enough
Large dairy herds in the country should be larger. It's taking a lot of a handful of cows to bring in an income that is large enough to satisfy. The herd ought to contain more cows of real merit. Every farmer ought to set it as a mark to aim at, that, by use of better bulls, occasional purchase of a choice cow, and by raising a choice heifer calf from a choice cow and choice bull, his herd, his money-making machine, span steadily improve.

Pat Pickering Strings On
We occasionally run across the farmer who seems to begrudge a cow every mouthful she eats, and who looks upon winter as wasted time through which he must starve the cow, get her through cheap, no matter in what shape she comes out in the spring.

Such men ought to read what we found in another paper, and copy below, and take a look at the picture that we found to go with the reading matter on skimpy feeding, costly in long run.

Better feeding of cows is one sure way of increasing dairy profits on many farms, declares the Blue Valley Creamery Institute. Its possibilities were shown by an interesting test completed recently by the Indiana experiment station with five mature cows typical in appearance and production of the average in that state.

Records kept on these cows in the herds of their owners where they were fed and cared for in accordance with each owner's methods, showed that at the end of the year their average production was 5,083.8 pounds milk containing 202.9 pounds butterfat. The cost of the feed they consumed was $43.72 and the return above feed cost was $77.46 per cow.

The number of Chinese restaurants in that section of Broadway between Herald Square and Columbus Circle is increasing. There are twenty of these Chin' eating-places, with their gaudy and variegated outside signs and dim interiors. Such famous places as the old Palais-Royal and Churchill's have "gone Chinese." The waiters in these restaurants are unusually courteous. Being stockholders and therefore financially interested in the place, they realize that polite and attentive service pays. The price of food is well within reach of the average purse. Excellent music is provided, and the patrons can enjoy a good dinner and dance all evening for about two dollars, which is less than the cover charge of some of the "smart" supper clubs.

It is a curious fact that all efforts on the part of Broadway theatrical managers to fill the galleries and balconies of their theatres have been unavailing. This is rather strange when one remembers that those seats are much cheaper than orchestra chairs. When George M. Cohan began production of "The Merry Malones" the price of orchestra seats was $2. The orchestra was filled every night, but the upper floors were thinly patronized. Cohan raised the orchestra price to $4, and then to $5. But the result was the same—lower floor filled, upper floors with comparatively few patrons.

President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State has a "knack" of saying just the thing at the right time.

When the scales have told him at the beginning of the month how much milk each cow produces in an average day, the farmer knows at once the approximate production he may expect from each cow each day for the next four weeks. Since milk is made from the feed cows consume, those giving different amounts of milk naturally require different amounts of feed. The experience of many successful dairymen shows that a cow should receive as much good hay and other roughage as she will clean up thoroughly each day, according to breed and condition of the cow. By feeding each cow according to the amount of milk she produces, the farmer will do away with the costly practice of unintentionally over-feeding one cow and under-feeding another, states the Institute. He will also know that each cow is getting the amount of feed she should have

At the end of the year these same five cows were purchased by the experiment station, were given average good conditions for milk production and were provided with a ration made up of legume hay, corn silage and a good mixture for supplementing these roughages. Their records at the end of the second year show the profitability of better methods. Their average milk production was increased to 5,022 pounds and fat production to 316.8 pounds. While the feed cost was $72.34, or 65 per cent more than the previous year, the average return above feed cost was $135.04, or 74 per cent more than the year before. In other words, each cow made $57.58 more over feed cost the second year under better conditions for feeding than she did the year before when she received poor roughages and improper grain mixtures.

And Further
What is said below, about how much feed contains more truth than poetry.

We are lucky to have a picture to go with that, too.

Cow's Production Determines Feeding
The only means the farmer has to determine the amount of feed a cow should get to produce milk most economically is by weighing the amount of milk she gives in an average day, declares the Blue Valley Creamery Institute.

"But I'm not going to the bother of weighing each cow's milk twice a day every day for a month, just to find out how much milk a cow gives in an average day," said a farmer recently to C. M. Long, chief of the Institute's farm service.

"You don't have to," said the dairy expert, "because recently it was discovered that if you weigh the milk a cow produces on two successive days, let's say the first and second days of the month—and will then divide the total amount produced by two to strike an average, you will know very close her exact average milk production per day for the month."

OUR NEW YORK LETTER

By Samuel J. O'Brien (Special to the Avalanche)

New York, Feb. 6, 1928.
The Beaux Arts Pageant of the Astor Hotel, last week, was one of the most beautiful and gorgeous balls ever seen in New York. More than three thousand men and women, arrayed in bizarre and splendid costumes, made merry until seven o'clock in the morning. The main ballroom, designated "The Oasis of Sid El Brahim," presented a scene of Oriental splendor, while the north ballroom transformed into a slave market, offered a picturesque and exotic picture. For magnificence of costume and decoration, nothing like the Beaux Arts Pageant has ever been seen in New York.

A good many out-of-town visitors to the Great White Way of New York keep a sharp lookout for what are known as the Broadway Butterflies. These are men who go up with the variety of Broadway dancin'. They crave furs and precious stones, and prefer "old" friends to young ones for the reason that the young ones are not so plentifully supplied with the necessary cash. And so the butterflies continue blithely on their mercy way, making the most of their opportunities to secure the best that life affords in the easiest way.

The City Fathers of New York have passed an ordinance permitting the girls to wear one-piece bathing suits at Coney Island. Mayor Walker seems to be dubious about appending his signature. To sign or not to sign—that is the question. To us it seems an unnecessary law, as the girls, evidently believing that "beauty is adorned most," have already popularized this revealing garment.

Moths of those heroes who made the "supreme sacrifice" in the World War will have an opportunity to visit the graves of their beloved dead in France, probably next summer, as the guests of Uncle Sam. It will be a graceful act of the government to extend this consideration to the Gold Star mothers.

Some wealthy men have adopted the practice of erecting bungalows on the roof of some of the towering skyscrapers. These airy residences have many advantages. They are at once isolated and in the "middle of everything." Away up there the air is pure, the view magnificent, street noises are much diminished and one can do as she pleases without incurring the disapproval of neighbors—a very important consideration to denizens of the Great White Way. Yet if one desires to project himself into the liveliest metropolitan area in the world, a two-minute elevator trip takes him there.

Mr. and Mrs. Storrs provided the debonair set with the unique party of the season on the occasion of the "coming-out" of their daughter, Miss Anne Storrs, at the Ritz-Carlton, New York, recently. The party was given in a complete jungle setting, with real monkeys cavorting through the shrubbery. Pineapples, coconuts and tropical fruits hung from the moss-covered trees. Even the waiters were arrayed in monkey attire, presenting a decidedly odd and comical appearance.

THE BANKER-FARMER MOVEMENT GROWING
There are several reasons for the growth of the banker-farmer movement in Pennsylvania. William S. McKay, Chairman of the Agricultural Committee, Pennsylvania Bankers Association, has reported to the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association. The cooperation and leadership of the county agents in the several counties of the state; the appointment and functioning of county chairmen of agriculture known as Key Bankers, one of whom there is in each county of the state; and the organization of county bankers associations, whereby agriculture is given consideration by all the banks, are responsible for this interest. The following table shows the activities for the year:

Project	Number of Counties
Sent young farmers to state college for special course	18
Encouraged farm shows	18
Held agricultural tours	18
Sponsored various club activities	38
Gave illustrated lectures on poultry, cow testing, and improved farm methods	1
Distributed purchased livestock, chicks, and disease-free potatoes	13

"There is probably no class of business men that has a greater opportunity for helpfulness than the bankers in this movement," declares Mr. McKay. "It builds up a substantial community which makes for better banking institutions. It adds to the material prosperity of our state, but above all, it is the expression of a service which will react favorably upon the character of those interested."

BANKERS HELP OUT
The Oklahoma Bankers Association for the past twelve years has financed through its five groups ten scholarships in the A. M. College at Stillwater. The winners are chosen by the Extension Department of the college on the merits of the club work done by the boys and girls over a certain period of time. The groups of the association finance the first year of the winner's college work.

The president of a national bank in Fayetteville, Arkansas, has been credited with doing more for the farmers of his section than any other one man. His work has consisted of introducing pure bred Holstein cattle into his county, helping employ a county agent, donating prizes to boys and girls in club work, and distributing better seed.

Here are some of the things accomplished in Randolph County, Ark., with the help of the bank: Forty-three pure bred sows were bought at a reasonable price and placed with boys and girls, on notes; three thousand eggs from high producing hens were distributed with the idea of developing flocks of at least one hundred hens on every farm; four pure bred Jersey bulls whose dams had a record of over 700 pounds butterfat, have been purchased by the bank and will be paid for out of service fees.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN THE MAN OF THE AGES

By Lola B. Craven, Frederic

In a country like ours, where the people are the depositories of sovereignty, and where from necessity, they must make known their will in most cases through their representatives, it is all important that they should know the character of their Chief Magistrate.

No individual upon this continent, and we may add, no man in the civilized world, is more the object of public observation, at any time, than the President of the United States. The office alone would give him prominence. But his having risen by his own efforts, from obscurity to this high and dignified position, and the manner in which he has met the many difficult problems, and discharged his duties amid events having no parallel in the history of this or of any other country, mark Abraham Lincoln, as a man of no ordinary character.

Born of humble, but respectable parents in Hardin County, Kentucky, February 12, 1809, where the means of education were almost entirely unknown; thrown in early life, upon his own resources, with no fortune but his own inextinguishable integrity, and with no advantages but what he exerted from adverse circumstances, he had by his own powers and the strength of his character, attained an elevation of which any man might be justly proud. In all the intermediate steps, from obscurity to eminence, he has arisen by his own industry and honest efforts.

Lincoln had a strong desire to get into politics, and although defeated in 1832, he became a candidate for the legislature again in 1834. This time he was successful. His election was a great triumph for his country, and in 1861 he was elected President of the United States. It is hardly necessary to speak of his patriotic devotion to the Constitution and the Union, or the great object of his anxiety and toil during his whole Presidential course.

Abraham Lincoln was the greatest statesman of his time, and equally the greatest politician, and both in a strictly honorable and highly dignified sense. What other man could have tamed and made submissive to his will the brusque and imperious Stanton? Who, but he, could have issued an Emancipation Proclamation and retained the adhesion of the Border States?

Abraham Lincoln's theory of our government was that it was a product of compromise, and even thus, ideally perfect, yet that whoever chose to live under it, and enjoy its benefits should obey it, and that whoever undertook to bound himself by an oath to preserve, protect and defend it should do so rigidly.

He was interested in slavery, which was playing an important part in the Nation at this time, and often stated "If slavery is not wrong—nothing is wrong."

As a moralist Abraham Lincoln, like Henry Clay, was a colonizationist in favor of colonizing the negroes, but he was of the opinion that the white and colored races could not occupy the same nation in peace. But the negro is now, by the grace of God and through the agency of Abraham Lincoln, free and independent, and a citizen of the Republic.

Abraham Lincoln descended from that old Puritan stock, and was ever cherished that indelible devotion to moral principles which neither threats nor flattery could shake. The honesty of purpose and devotion to moral principle may be said to be the basis of his character.

He took to heart the eternal truths of liberty and accepted the humanitarian as the judge of his ability. And through trials and hardships of life, he has finished a work, which all time cannot overtake.

As the sum of all the hand of Lincoln raised the flag; of which every American Citizen should be justly proud.

In his early life he read and reread the Bible, and prayed constantly for God's guidance.

Commenting with his first public utterance after his election, and through all stages of his administration he declared that with God's help he would succeed and without it, he would fail.

Lincoln passes to the side of Washington, the one the father; and the other the savior of a great nation. He has lived and died not for America alone, but for every land under Heaven. The World is too small to furnish a grave for Abraham Lincoln, and the spirit of the martyr will continue to dwell among us. The name of Abraham Lincoln is crowned with the wreath of immortality.

USEFUL INFORMATION
If a meringue is tough and watery it has been cooked in too hot an oven. The heat toughens the protein and causes the moisture to ooze out in drops of slimy. Cook dishes with meringue in a very moderate oven, setting the food in a larger pan containing water, and see how much better the result is.

Use judgment in selecting a salad to go with any menu. For a hearty meal a light salad, such as a leafy green vegetable and French dressing, is appropriate, or a lettuce and acid fruit salad, with French dressing. With a light meal, one wants a hearty salad with a cooked, or mayonnaise dressing. Salads of vegetables, eggs, fish, cheese, or meat, in combination, may be used as the main dish or a light meal, but not as a side dish.

Blankets when washed may be placed over a line with a half or a fourth on one side. The ends should be squeezed occasionally to remove excess water. Do not attempt to dry blankets out of doors in freezing weather. If it is necessary to wash them during the winter months, as in cases of sickness, arrange a line somewhere in a clean, warm, dry part of the house. When they are dry, raise the nap by brushing well with a clean, stiff whisk broom.

Here are some suggestions for tasty sandwiches for winter afternoon gatherings, either at home or elsewhere: Finely ground watercress creamed with butter and spread on Graham bread; parsley, with a few drops of lemon juice, minced and mixed with creamy butter in the same way; club cheese sharp-flavor, with chopped English walnuts, a few drops of onion juice, salt, and tomato catsup; orange rind, grated, and mixed with butter. Cut the sandwiches with fancy cooking cutters.

Try baked cabbage with apples. Place a layer of chopped cabbage in the bottom of a baking dish, dot with butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and cover with thinly sliced tart apples sprinkled lightly with sugar. Add another layer of cabbage and so on until the dish is full. Buttered bread crumbs are sprinkled over the top and the whole is baked with a cover on the cabbage is tender and the apples are done. Uncover and brown the crumbs.

There were about eighteen present and the guest of honor was presented with a lovely serving tray, six water tumblers and six sherbet glasses in the colored glassware.

One couldn't help but notice during the Saturday night Independent game, the true loyalty to the home team of Jim Reynolds, one of Grayling's most enthusiastic basketball fans. Even though his brother Harry was a member of the visiting team he had no desire that they come out ahead, and rooted loudly for the locals at all times. This is true sportsmanship and shows the right kind of home spirit.

Seven couples were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Laurant at the home of the former last evening to organize a weekly bridge club. Where did Shakespeare get his genius? Where did Mozart get his music? Whose hand smote the lyre of the Scottish ploughman, and stayed the life of the German priest? God, God, and God alone; and as surely as these were raised up by God, inspired by God, was Abraham Lincoln; and a thousand years hence, no drama, no tragedy, no epic poem will be filled with greater wonder, or be followed by mankind with deeper feeling than that which tells the story of his life and death.

Word of the passing of Mrs. George Thompson at her home in Santa Fe, New Mexico last Sunday was received by relatives here that day. The young woman's mother, Mrs. Marie Hanson, who left Monday night in answer to a message that her daughter was in a serious condition arrived there on Thursday. Death was due to that terrible disease tuberculosis, from which she had been a sufferer for several years. The remains will arrive in Grayling Friday morning and the funeral will be held Saturday afternoon with services at the Danish-Lutheran church. Surviving the deceased are her husband and little six months old son, Tommy Jr. The young woman had many friends in Grayling, who are grieved to learn of her untimely demise.

The annual District Basketball tournament will be held in Grayling March 1-2-3. Already one entry has been filed—McBain. That school has furnished excellent teams each year but they haven't been able to carry away any honors. In spite of the fact that last year their gymnasium burned before the opening of the season and the boys had to drive six miles to Lake City for practice, they put up a fast, gamey fight. The year before they came with a fine lineup, arriving just in time to take the floor against Kalamazoo after driving all night. The boys were seriously in need of rest and lost by a close margin. They put up fine games during the remainder of the tournament. Now they have a fine new school house and gymnasium and we believe they will be serious contenders in the class D series.

Mr. Barnett is a retired dairyman and resides at Walled Lake, Oakland county. Upon their return they intend to make their home in Grayling. They have the best wishes of their Grayling friends.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TO GIVE CONCERT

The Primary Dept. of the Michelson Memorial Sunday School is preparing to give a concert the latter part of this month to help raise funds to carry on their work. The superintendent and teachers are asking for the cooperation of the mothers of children of the Primary Dept., to see that they attend rehearsals Mondays and Thursdays of each week until the program can be given. It may be two weeks; however the date for the concert will depend upon the way the children respond to rehearsals.

"Hi-Jacking"

"Hi-Jack" is a slang word meaning to rob by trickery or violence, especially to rob another robber or a boot-legger of his illegal wares. Just when "hi-jack" and "hi-jacker" originated is unknown. It is supposed that "hi-jacker" was first applied to a gang of hobos who preyed on men working in the harvest fields of the Middle West. Their practice was, so it is said, to halt their prospective victims with "Hi, Jack, what time is it?" The salutation was followed by a blow on the head and the victim was then relieved of his hard-earned gold. Path Under Magazine.

Mrs. Daisy Belle Kraus, widow of the former L. J. Kraus and Mr. Francis Albert Barnett, of Walled Lake, were united in marriage Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock, by Rev. Greenwood at Michelson Memorial church. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hendrie. Mr. and Mrs. Barnett left soon after on a honeymoon trip to Detroit and other places. Mrs. Barnett is one of our best known young women and for about a year and a half has been personally in charge of the Kraus Estate hardware business in which she has been very successful. Mr. Barnett is a retired dairyman and resides at Walled Lake, Oakland county. Upon their return they intend to make their home in Grayling. They have the best wishes of their Grayling friends.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TO GIVE CONCERT

The Primary Dept. of the Michelson Memorial Sunday School is preparing to give a concert the latter part of this month to help raise funds to carry on their work. The superintendent and teachers are asking for the cooperation of the mothers of children of the Primary Dept., to see that they attend rehearsals Mondays and Thursdays of each week until the program can be given. It may be two weeks; however the date for the concert will depend upon the way the children respond to rehearsals.

MICHIGAN FOR HOOVER

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 8.—In an editorial on "Michigan for Hoover," The Michigan Property Owner in its February issue, to be off the press next week, urges the middle west and west to give united support to presidential candidates for the Republican and Democratic parties who first have the confidence of the Nation and secondly will be able to push the St. Lawrence Waterway with all possible speed without having to consider the selfish interest of home constituencies.

The editorial particularly points out that New York is emphatically against Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce in the Coolidge cabinet, undoubtedly because Mr. Hoover was chairman of the American committee that recommended immediate action on the St. Lawrence Waterway and reported that the so-called All American route thru New York state was not feasible, and that that fact makes Mr. Hoover most desirable from the standpoint of the central and western states. It further points out that Al Smith, now apparently leading the field of candidates for the Democratic nomination, is strictly of New York city and state, and that that state is also the source of the boom for Charles Evans Hughes, another resident, for the Republican nomination, and that either of those men, as president, though they might be completely convinced that the national good demanded the St. Lawrence Waterway, would be forced to consider the New York route and the various schemes for delaying action that could be brought. The magazine, published by the Michigan Real Estate Association, declares that the Waterway is the greatest single need of Michigan agriculture and industry of today and urges that it be given first consideration instead of such matters of popular prejudice as the wet and dry question and religion, advising Michigan Republicans and Democrats to concentrate upon candidates favorable to the Waterway who are capable of carrying the nation as a whole as well.

President Hints at Veto if Moderation Isn't Shown in Tax Reduction.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

MODERATION in tax reduction is still insisted on by President Coolidge, and unless the revenue bill passed by the house is so amended that the total cut shall be not far from the $220,000,000 recommended by the administration it may be vetoed. That was the construction placed on the President's remarks at the semi-annual budget meeting of government officials. In part he said:

"I have expressed myself in favor of further moderate tax reduction. I have indicated the maximum reduction we can now afford. There was no partisan thought in that recommendation. I hope there will be none in its final consideration by the congress."

"We should not depart from the wise policy established, and thus far rigidly followed, of keeping our expenses within our receipts. That I had in mind in making my recommendation. It has made a rich contribution to the splendid financial status of the country. It has enabled us to hire money at a lower rate than any other business in the world. It has been effective in the maintenance of prosperity. It has the hearty endorsement of the taxpayers."

"That policy of a balanced budget—expenditures within receipts—must not be molested. It must not be endangered."

FOLLOWING closely the recommendations of the President, the army appropriation bill was reported favorably by the house appropriations committee. The measure carries a total of nearly $400,000,000, the largest since the war-time expansion period, and is more liberal than last year's bill in providing funds for the purchase and testing of new weapons and for motorized equipment. It does not, however, provide much for the building up of the depleted ammunition reserves. The air corps gets $4,452,908, the National Guard $1,728,744, and the organized reserves and R. O. T. C. about $900,000.

GOVERNMENT ownership and operation of the merchant marine will be continued if the senate has its way. That body, by a vote of 53 to 41, passed the Jones bill despite the opposition of the President. Nineteen Republicans joined with Democrats and the Farmer-Labor senator in support of the measure, while 24 Republicans and eight Democrats voted against it. The Republicans favoring the bill included not only the radicals but a number of senators ordinarily classed as regulars, such as James Willis Robinson, Gooding and Schall.

The feature of the bill which is regarded as the most objectionable to President Coolidge is a clause which prohibits the sale of ships except by a unanimous vote of the shipping board. Another provision which has counted against the Coolidge policies recognizes the necessity for the replacement of present vessels and the construction of additional up-to-date cargo, combination cargo and passenger, and passenger ships and authorizes the shipping board to submit estimates to congress for this purpose. The President is against the expenditure of any government funds in the construction of any new ships.

Though the bill will have strong support in the house, its passage there is regarded as doubtful. Should it be brought in its present form it is likely to be vetoed by the President.

TWO projected loans to Soviet Russia, totaling $70,000,000, were held by the State department when this statement was issued. "The department objects to financial arrangements involving the donation of a loan in the United States or the employment of credit for the purpose of making an advance to the Soviet regime. The department does not approve in any way the sale of Soviet bonds here."

Perovskiy, a Russian already had negotiated a six-year credit of $40,000,000 for the construction and equipment of immense steel works; and the Chase National bank of New York and the Amalgamated bank of Chicago had planned to set as agents for payments of interest and retirement charges on a bond issue of $30,000,000 which was to be disposed of by the Soviet government by private sale to Americans.

WILLIAM G. MCADOO projected himself into the political situation again with a ringing attack on the Presidential candidacy of Gov. Al Smith—or, indeed, of any war. Ad-dressing a law enforcement meeting in Richmond, Va., Smith's old rival for the Democratic nomination flatly contradicted some of the governor's recent statements, declared the "liquor interests" had captured political power both in New York and in Maryland, and argued that to expect prohibition enforcement from a President hostile to prohibition was "upon its face an absurdity." He said the issue was one that must be fought "to a conclusion" in the campaign of 1928.

The speaker suggested, among other things, that the federal government give financial aid to the states in prohibition enforcement, somewhat after the manner of the federal aid system by which states now are assisted in road building.

Senator Jim Reed's headquarters in Washington and New York are becoming very busy places, and the senator is to make a speaking tour of the South and West. The Smith boosters hope Reed will gather in a lot of delegates, for they expect all his votes will be turned over to Al before the caucus is decided in the convention.

Members of London and Hoover, and the leading possibilities for the Republican nomination, are displaying intense activity in the states that will vote in the primary.

is developing considerable strength and it seems likely he will have quite a block of votes when the Kansas City convention opens.

REPRESENTATIVE J. B. ASWELL, of Louisiana, ranking Democratic member of the house committee on agriculture, may have solved the troubles of congress in the matter of farm-relief legislation, for the surplus control bill he introduced recently is looked on with favor as a compromise that might be agreed upon by the administration leaders and the supporters of the McNary-Haugen bill. Of course in that case it would be re-drafted and introduced by some Republican. While it accepts the structure and general machinery of the McNary-Haugen bill, the Aswell plan eliminates the equalization fee, held by the administration to be unconstitutional.

"In lieu of this federal tax on the producers," the author explains, "we provide for the payment from the treasury through a revolving fund of losses, costs and charges arising under marketing agreements; the revolving fund to receive the profits from the sale of commodities. A total appropriation of $400,000,000 is authorized for the revolving fund, but only $200,000,000 of this sum is available for such payments. The remaining $150,000,000 is for loans to cooperative marketing associations, when as in the McNary-Haugen bill the entire $400,000,000 is available for loans and the producers are liable to assessments for handling their crops."

The only other material variation in the Aswell bill gives the proposed farm board power to control production by refusing to commence a marketing period or by terminating an existing period for a commodity that has been substantially increased against the advice and program of the board or above the immediately preceding five-year average.

ON FEBRUARY 6, the sesquicentennial anniversary of the first treaty between the United States and France, the new treaty of arbitration was signed by those nations. It is a substitute for the Root arbitration treaty, and its preamble contains a declaration against war as an instrument of national policy. Under the pact, should a controversy arise between France and the United States that falls of diplomatic treatment, if arbitration formula must be applied to the approval of the American senate. In addition, the agreement bars from arbitration any disputes concerning purely domestic affairs, those involving the interests of a third party, or the Monroe doctrine.

FORN MINISTER STRIKES

MAXIM OF GERMANY, whose recent illness led to predictions of his retirement, has recovered enough to deliver a round speech before the Reichstag. In the first he set forth the fact that Germany has done for the solution of the security problem, declaring no other state has done more or as much, and branded the French fears as hypocrisy. He said the German army was too small even to defend the country's own borders and demanded the evacuation of the Rhineland because its military occupation "is one of the greatest obstacles in a real Franco-German rapprochement." Next day Herr Stresemann, replying to Nationalist critics, reasserted his resolve to adhere to the Locarno policy, and then again appealed to France to remove the iron curtain in the Rhineland in order that Germany and France may work together for world peace.

Foreign Minister Briand of France replied by saying that if Germany wished to hurry up the evacuation she must pay the reparations more swiftly.

OSCAR UNDERWOOD, member of the United States delegation in the Pan-American conference in Havana, says the hope of that conference will give approval to the relations of this country with Latin America. One of its chief achievements, he thinks, will be the adoption of the Pan-American aviation treaty.

The committee on Pan-American union affairs adopted the Mexican plan permitting each nation to name anyone it wished as its representative on the governing board, but decisively rejected Mexico's suggestion that the chairmanship of that board be given each republic in turn.

FLYING about 750 miles, much of the time over unexplored mountain and jungle country, Colonel Lindbergh in the Spirit of St. Louis made the trip from Bogota to Maracaibo, Venezuela, in a little more than ten hours and was warmly welcomed by President Gomez of Venezuela and a great crowd. The ambassador of good-will was delayed by losing his way in a fog, but as always he arrived safely. In Caracas the customary honors were heaped on the young man and then, on Wednesday he hopped off again for a thousand-mile dash to the Virgin Islands. He followed the great curve of the Antilles, passing over three beautiful islands on the way, and in 10 hours and 15 minutes made a beautiful landing on Lindbergh Field, St. Thomas. Capt. Waldo E. Evans, governor of the islands, met him and they led a great procession through the city of Charlotte Amalie, the entire population taking part. Thursday Colonel Lindbergh flew to Porto Rico.

EARL DOUGLAS EARL, Great Britain's most famous soldier in the world war, died quite suddenly at his sister's home in London, and the nation was plunged in mourning for the mighty warrior who, all his life a soldier, had risen to be field marshal, commander in chief of the British army in France, Knight of the Thistle and peer of the realm. There was a state funeral for Sir Douglas in St. Paul's and his body was buried at Westminster.

VICTORIA BLANC DANA, the eminent Spanish novelist who died in exile in France, left instructions in his will that he be not buried in Spain, but that he be interred at Mexico; but earth brought from Valencia, Spain, was sprinkled in his coffin and his body was wrapped in a copy of the banner carried by El Cid Campeador, Spain's outland hero.

FLAMES swept through the business and industrial districts of Fall River, Mass., Thursday night, and before the conflagration was checked an area of 100,000 sq. ft. had been destroyed. More than twenty-five buildings were damaged and the property loss was estimated at as high as $35,000,000.

American "Rash" Only Result of Evolution

Many Americans think that other nations are "rushing" and that their country is "lagging" behind. They wish their country could stop soaping on the gas and enjoy the scenery. And even though they drive slowly through a city, they complain that the view is spoiled by a billboard.

But they overlook a number of things. America is a country of one kind of evolution. You take your time. You don't "rush" your way through life. You take your time. You don't "rush" your way through life. You take your time. You don't "rush" your way through life.

At the same time, the American people are not "rushing" their way through life. They are taking their time. They are enjoying the scenery. They are enjoying the gas.

The known same funny things in life, but this sure knocks you dead. That old man wears less clothes when he's dressed, than when they go to bed.

JACK CAME BACK

The lady you hear doing the statistical work at the next desk is friend wife. A few moments ago she read where an Indiana man paid a fine of $100 for calling a woman he did not know "sweetheart," and judging from the start she's got me must be a million dollars west of the water tower by this time.

Manufacturers of spark plugs, producers of oil and gasoline, hasten to broadcast it as their products. They seem to have forgotten to mention the common sense he also has with him on his international journeys.

Now that we are soon to see as well as hear over the radio, we are anxious to get just one glimpse of the "one who says 'hello everybody!'" Even the Nicaraguans couldn't fight while they had the necks craned watching "We're over here."

A Chicago man has given one million dollars for longer lives. Well, a million would help to lengthen out those 30-day note periods.

Now that the automobile and oil fellows have begun popping at each other, it begins to look like it was going to be a great year for the common people.

Ideal American Boy and Girl

Those Nicaraguans must have some American qualities after all. They are reported now as scrapping very bravely over an election bill.

As Requested
A rather singular youth, an agent in business, when asked for his hat to be cut a little longer.

The knight of the shears set to work and while his customer was engrossed in the contents of a humorously weekly cut of all his hair.

The youth suddenly caught sight of his shaven poll in a mirror, and was very annoyed.

"What have you done that for?" he demanded indignantly.

"I cut it just as you said," declared the barber. "You wanted it all shaved, and there you are!"

Cetacean's Odd Habit
It is a matter of common report that a certain cetacean, probably a grampus, lived for years in Pelorus sound, New Zealand, and had the habit of accompanying vessels through the sound. This animal was so regular in its appearance and so well known that it had received the name of "Pelorus Jack." There seems to be no doubt as to the existence of this animal, and of the fact that it was recognized by the New Zealand government. It appears to have been a large porpoise, or grampus, and was certainly not a fish.

WHO IS IN PRISON?

In a singularly interesting and informative document, denominated a "report" Judge Arthur Wood, state pardon and parole commissioner, wrote his impressions of this important system as it operates in Michigan and among other things he summarized his answers to the question, "Who is in prison?"

These answers are manifestly the result of his experience and are to be valued accordingly. Read it and think about it; you will be quite astonished at the classification, we believe.

Mr. Wood says:
1. The poor—few own a home or other property. Less than five per cent pay taxes.

2. The stranger—few commit crimes near home, or in their native community.

3. The weak—the majority are influenced by shrewd criminals, or school above their mentality, such as forgers, or trusted beyond their price, such as embezzlers.

4. The unlettered—the mass are persons of little schooling, fully 80 per cent.

5. The friendless—the man without means or acquaintances is easily convicted.

6. The sport—the mass began a downward career with some sex irregularity.

7. The dissipated—the great majority confess to excess in the use of alcoholic drink or drugs.

8. The indolent—while many have labored intermittently or tried to live by their wits, very few had a permanent job when arrested.

9. The unattached male—the mass are single or divorced, or separated from all female relatives and their influence.

10. The foolish—some cog clipped in the case of every prisoner. The mass admit it. Many are more stupid than wicked.

11. The convicted—those behind prison walls know that the law has been enforced against them with some severity in all, while 70 per cent of those indicted escaped conviction and 27 per cent escaped imprisonment. Thirteen per cent have been called to pay.

FRESHENING BREEZES
Over in Illinois a Cicero bandit held up a Chicago man and finding he had no money forced him to surrender his trousers. For one, we're glad this is not the season for country editors.

SET NEW RECORD AT FARMERS' WEEK

Speakers Pled To More Optimistic Future For Agriculture At Annual Conference At M. S. C.

East Lansing, Feb. 6.—More than 10,000 Farmers' Week visitors, a new high attendance record, was the estimate made at M. S. C. at the close of the annual agricultural conference last week.

Increased interest and increased attendance were evident in most instances in both the group and general meetings held during the week. For the first time in the history of Farmers' Week, a building large enough to house the huge crowd comfortably was available. The new demonstration hall accommodated all of the general meetings this year, as well as the more extensive exhibits.

Outstanding agricultural authorities engaged to address Farmers' Week meetings, for the most part, pointed to a more optimistic future for agriculture, especially along the lines of dairying and livestock production. Attention was called to the latest discoveries in the line of modern and efficient farm practices resulting from research and experimental work by college specialists.

Meetings of 35 farmers' associations were held during the week, in addition to special programs staged by the departments of the agricultural division of the college.

218,373,106 fish of all species were planted last year in the inland lakes, streams, rivers and waters of the Great Lakes from the State's seventeen hatcheries and nursery ponds, according to Ferd A. Westerman, Fish Division, Department of Conservation, in a report to Geo. R. Hogarth, Acting Director.

An increasingly large number of fish are being developed to the fingerling stage before planting; the report shows that these are all being naturally or artificially fed in the hatcheries and nursing ponds.

Approximately 32,500,000 of all fish planted last year were brook, brown and rainbow trout. 1,100
